

3rd CBC Digital Health Conference London

February 22nd & 23rd 2017

Register Now

The UCL Centre for Behaviour Change is delighted to announce its third annual behaviour change conference. The conference focus is on 'Digital Health and Wellbeing', hosted in association with the UCL Institute for Digital Health.

World-renowned academic experts will join key members of the public health and technology sectors in a series of talks, presentations, workshops, and more. Registration for the conference, workshops, and gala dinner are now open. Tickets are limited, and registration closes in February.

Conference themes include:

- Using behaviour change theory to create high-quality interventions and products
- Multi-disciplinary approaches to digital health and wellbeing
- Developments in wearable and sensor technology
- Creating developer/industry partnerships

Keynote speakers

Ching-Hua Chen
IBM Research

Susan A. Murphy
University of Michigan

William T. Riley
Director of the NIH Office of Behavioral and Social Sciences Research